

U.S. CITIZENS FOR PEACE & JUSTICE, ROME, PRESENTS EYES WIDE OPEN FILM SERIES

2011 FALL/WINTER PROGRAM in collaboration with Associazione Culturale Arcobaleno

Every second Thursday evening at 8pm (except Nov 10)
Circolo Arci Arcobaleno, Via Pullino 1 (Metro Garbatella)

Oct 20 – Budrus (2010). In this award-winning film, a community organizer unites Fatah and Hamas members with Israeli supporters in a nonviolent protest to save his Palestinian village Budrus from destruction by Israel's Separation Barrier. Meaningful negotiations, peaceful dissent, creation of a Palestinian State: can this formula alone bring peace to the region?

Nov 3 – Inside Job (2010). The causes of the 2008 global financial meltdown are critically examined in this Oscar-winner for best documentary. Tough questions eke out shocking truths about the rise of a rogue industry, corruption, politics and inadequate regulation. Where do we stand now? Can we recover?
➔ English with Italian subtitles.
Sottotitoli in Italiano: da vedere!

Nov 10 – The War You Don't See (2010). This new John Pilger film is a powerful and timely investigation into the media's role in war: e.g. how the media sold us the existence of "weapons of mass destruction" and then hid the colossal extent of civilian deaths. The embedding of journalists, Al Jazeera's independent voice (is it?), Wikileaks, and more included.

Dec 1 – Salt of the Earth (1954). The only blacklisted US film in history, Salt was banned for its daring political story based on a real-life strike by Mexican-American miners in protest of low wages and dangerous working conditions. They meet brutal opposition from company thugs and sheriff's deputies. Boldly made by blacklisted filmmakers, this milestone indie is a must see!

Dec 15 – Camp Victory Afghanistan (2010). The war in Afghanistan is now in its 11th year. This extraordinary film, shot over three years by a woman director, documents how the US army is (vainly) trying to turn ragtag groups of impoverished, uncertain Afghans into a trained Army, loyal to their imposed regime. Cultural conflicts, plus reciprocal lack of trust, make the task daunting.

Feb 9 – Will the Real Terrorist Please Stand Up (2011). This film sets out to discover what Cuba did that was retaliated by 50 years of persecution by each US administration to date: from invasion (Bay of Pigs) to embargoes, to infiltration of Miami-based terrorists, to multiple attempts on Fidel's life. Leading terrorists and US/Cuban officials offer their views for you to judge.
